〔講義の目的〕 The main goal of this course is to improve on student presentation performance and the ability to create interesting and effective presentations using PowerPoint. Students will learn several methods of presenting their research in English without fear or anxiety in front of an audience of their peers.
〔講義の概要〕 The keys to good presentation are planning, organization, revision, and practice. Knowledge of research paper structure is crucial for students to effectively communicate their research in presentation format. Students will be introduced to a new system of presentation creation based on the “BBP” (“Beyond Bullet Points”) style, which will allow them to present their research ideas and project results in an easy to understand, succinct manner.
〔履修上の留意点〕 The text book has useful information, but the only way to improve presentations is to do it. Classmates are also a great resource. By carefully listening to classmates and discussing problems, everyone can improve!
〔到達目標〕 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Learn a new style of making presentations without using “bullets.”</li> <li>• Improve organization of research presentation ideas.</li> <li>• Make at least two short presentations and one long presentation.</li> </ul>
〔評価方法〕 Class Participation (30%) / Short presentations (30%) / Long presentation (40%)
〔教科書〕 〔補助教材・参考書〕 The instructor will give handouts in class. Students will need to save their presentation materials and handouts in a file folder or binder. Final presentations must be submitted electronically prior to giving the presentation in front of the class.
〔関連科目〕 Students should be prepared before presentations in class. Lateness is not tolerated.
